Total Cooperation

This is war.
This is TOTAL WAR.
Only TOTAL COOPERATION can win this war, cooperation by all our people.

No one is too young nor too old to aid in some way. Your way to aid may not yet have become apparent, but you can find it if you try. Others are finding theirs.

The single most important mass action by residents of Carmel and the peninsula in the present stage of this war is the blackout.

The first blackout on Monday evening was a personal disappointment. There were several reasons, one, the most inexcusable, being self-confidence, smugness, and disregard.

The most outstanding failure was the city street lights. While the local civilian defense headquarters operated in dim light, the street lights dazzled outside; and a few store fronts on Ocean avenue contributed also.

Otherwise, cooperation was reasonably good. In the residential areas, lights were speedily eclipsed. Chief exception here was the case of lights left on while the occupants were out—to fool prowlers.

With the possibility, from last Sunday on, of enemy airplanes operating along the coast, the blackout assumes tremendous importance.

Each individual should take it upon himself, first to see his own blackout is complete, second to see that his neighbor has complied.

I think we should be realistic in this, and, when a blackout is called, whether in practice or in actual emergency, it should be complete, perfectly complete.

One light alone in a hundred does not make for 99 per cent efficiency. Perhaps it should be regarded as only a 10 per cent blackout.

"Pretty Good"

Tuesday's blackout was much better than Monday's—but, if this had been Hawaii, it would have been too late, because Sunday was Der Tag, as the Germans used to say a generation ago.

However, there are still some rugged individualists in this community, who insist on their right to let light shine and thereby jeopardize themselves and thousands of others.

They may very soon find that military insistence is something less gentle than mere civilian pleading and persuasion.

But Evidently

Jennifer Lloyd, this writer's little girl of ten, found Carmel's first "bomb crater," and took it quite as a matter of fact, although the report of finding same was somewhat saucer-eyed.

The "bomb crater," however, was the 1911 cesspool doing a timely cave-in in her grandparent's front (Continued on Page 4, Column 1)

War and Blackout Strike Carmel; Civilians Rally to Task in Hand

NEW BLACK-OUT RULES

From now on and until further notice a partial black-out will go into effect every night. City authorities have decreed it is unlawful, punishable by fine and arrest, for failure to observe these orders. Under a partial black-out the following rules and regulations will be observed by everyone concerned.

No black-out will be enforced unless there are four blasts on the fire siren repeated for five minutes.

1. Restricted lighting will be enforced from tonight on. (Your block warden will explain this provision to you.)
2. No signs lighted in streets, no lights unprotected in business houses that show in the street.
3. Business houses may have lights provided they can be put out one minute after the black-out alarm.
4. Streets in Monterey and Pacific Grove will be lighted until the signal blows. They will be out in Carmel and East Monterey. This is due to the fact that the mechanism in the latter two cities is such that the lights cannot be put out in a hurry, but this will be corrected in the near future.
5. Pending further instructions, autos will run with the usual lights until the alarm sounds when they will immediately black-out and pull over to the curb and stay there.
6. Public cooperation has been excellent and while we regret the inconvenience, it has given valuable information and training to the cities and the Civilian Defense organization.

In the event a complete black-out is ordered 4 short blasts of the fire whistle will be blown, repeated 4 times and continued for a period (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

ELIZABETH CASS
ART GALLERY

Elizabeth (Lib) Cass, a very personable young lady from Fresno via Los Angeles, will be the new curator at the Carmel Art Gallery.

She is living in Carmel with two handsome children, Timmie, who is attending Sunset school, and Linda, who is a little too young for Sunset.

Mrs. Cass will be in charge of the gallery, will live there, and will handle sales for the artists. She's experienced in this line of work, incidentally, and is all enthusiastic over her new position.

Mrs. Janie Otto was formerly curator, in the past few years, and before her Mrs. Nellie Montague. The gallery was once the old studio of the late Ira (Rem) Remsen, Carmel artist and writer ("Inchling," "Mr. Bunt" plays), with additions by Clay Otto, who designed and built the new gallery.

This is how citizens were first informed of black-out by such a sign placed in the Carmel Post Office. Present rules are printed on this page, but watch for further notices and information from your wardens.

CUT RED TAPE,
THIS IS WAR;
ROWNTREE

"It can't happen here."

But it did. This week Japanese planes flew in from the sea, the drum of their motors sounding in the ears of our people. That is, so far as any of us know for certain.

On Sunday faroff war broke in shocking suddenness upon what appeared to be a sleeping war power. Bombs in distant Hawaii and to the westward ended what had been for many a man in uniform something of a holiday from civilian life.

Soldiers were summoned to their posts. Civilians who had previously promised their services to aid in civil defense, and in police or fire fighting capacities immediately made themselves available.

Then war was declared, on Monday, December 8, 1941.

On Monday night the first black-out was called. The roar of planes was heard briefly overhead. In Carmel the blackout was incomplete, virtually unprepared and unrehearsed.

On Tuesday night the first really efficient black-out resulted. And again last night. Meanwhile repeated orders for black-outs were received at all hours.

Last night Bernard Rowntree, who has given unstintingly of his time as a councilman to the defense committee, declared before the council:

"This is war—let's get things done!"

The outburst was aimed at red tape wound around civilian defense coordinators. Coordinator E. A. H. Watson had pointed out the difficulties of blacking out the Carmel Post Office skylights, of the attorney general's ruling against covering car headlights, of this and that which were placing handicaps in the way of self and civilian defense.

"This is war," appealed Rowntree.

Praise for the work done by Watson, Mrs. Cedric Rowntree, their aides on down to the messenger boys, rang through the council (Continued on Page 4, Col. 3)

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT WILL BE GIVEN NEXT WEEK

Thursday evening, December 18, the children of the Carmel schools will present their annual Christmas pageant, "On Christmas Eve," at Sunset Auditorium.

Both the high school a capella choir and the Sunset choir will participate. The story of the birth of Christ will be enacted mainly by Sunset pupils.

AMERICA IN BATTLE

Now Freedom turns her shining gaze

Again to greet our land.

The fires of God around her blaze;

The sword is in her hand.

The sword is in her deathless hand:

Our hearts are filled with light

That we may bear our given share

Of battle for the right!

She calls to each and every one;

Her trumpets cleave the air.

Her face is toward the burning sun,

A helmet on her hair.

A helmet gleams upon her hair.

Our eyes are proud to see

The signal shine along the line

That leads to victory!

She moves upon the pulsing deep,

Her ships a lash of flame,

And guides the waking hearts that leap

To battle in her name.

Ah, God! to battle in her name:

Our lips are wide in song

To know we face at last the place

Where Freedom's sons belong!

Shark-Fishing, Dave, The Bunk; War Prices Attractive, But Then There's The War, Too!

Dear Dave—

You and I have been old ship mates, figuratively, for a good many years. How long is it? Well, at least since 1932, when you had that little old sloop at Lobos cove. Really, it's longer than that, because you once made a kind of canoe that you later gave to Jim Hopper and he gave to me. And in that we each did a bit of seagoing, getting ourselves spilt in the surf and rolled on the beach and scratched and scarred by loose nails and rough frames. We've always been getting into the water, whether it was good for us or not. I guess the old salt stuff got into our veins a good many generations ago, when your people helped to found the United States Coast Guard and mine were sailing their own coastal schooners out of Wales, fighting at Hampton Roads, or whaling down the old Pacific.

Well, the other night you called me on the telephone from San Francisco, all het up over this shark fishing racket. I call it a racket because to all deep sea fishermen fishing is a racket. "Business," if you really must be genteel.

You had read in the San Francisco Chronicle a belated article on the gold-nugget sharks, the elusive soupfin, and the fantastic price upon this once lowly fish's head.

It's quite true that a fishing boat has occasionally brought in as much as 17 tons of sharks on a single trip, of only a few days duration, maybe four or five or six days at sea. It's quite true that the price has gone up from $40 a ton several years ago to about $1500 last month.

We've talked commercial fishing a good deal, and you know how I love bringing something up out of the deep and getting paid for all the excitement and pleasure—and misery, too, sometimes. You expressed it exactly that day I brought you down to Santa Cruz from San Francisco on Hilary Belloc's Sea Hawk (Gallant little boat and my briny sweetheart!).

"Cupidity!" you said, with a gleam.

So you called me to ask, How about going fishing for sharks? Well, Dave, it's only the third time in a year that I've been approached, accosted about going fishing again, others lost heart. For it was an off season. I think several grown men sat on their bunks and wept, it was such a bad season. I believe that, because I'd stood in the stern cockpit and wept into the salt water myself, at times.

Well, Dave, that's the way it is. It's a hard game and, just when things are brightest, that's when they don't quite pan out.

Bill and I should have cleaned up. The year before, working as we did, with the luck we had with our gear, we'd have made several thousand dollars. Or this past albacore season, we'd have made a nice stake for a year's living. I had set $3,000 as the goal for my share. A friend of mine made $5500 the year before. Another friend of mine made $3,000 in six weeks this past fall. And I had a top boat in an off year when a few hundred dollars gross was good fishing.

So, with sharks hitting a $1500 peak, and now slumping fast to an average of today at around $550 a ton, and scarce as hen's teeth—and that no lie—I think I'll discourage you in this idea of going fishing.

I know all about Cupidity. I think she's a swell gal. But let's leave her alone. Let's stick to our knitting, you to your work and me to mine. After all, that's what the fishermen are doing, just fishing.

But, someday—don't let the dream die. We'll get that boat we've talked about. She'll be 45 feet from stem to stern, and Diesel-powered, with a steady trisail, and sturdy. She'll be fit for Alaska and the Behring Sea, and we'll go to Mexico in the winter, and fish whatever offers the chance of a killing, and the rest of the time we'll tie her up in some snug port and spend hours aboard working over charts and navigation and making gear, while our wives and children come down with basket lunches to spread out in the sunshine.

Thell with fishing! —F. L.

P.S.—And then, Dave, there's the matter of a little war going on now in the Pacific, with the possibility of mines bobbing up alongside. Fishermen never have TOO MUCH luck.

Navy Needs Men For Aviation Ground Work

Announcement was made in Washington, D.C., recently that the U. S. Navy will need more men who desire basic training for aviation ground work. To supply this need, schools have been established at four separate Naval air stations to give instruction in the work of aviation metalsmith, aviation machinist's mate, aviation ordnance man, and aviation radioman. Locations of these schools are Jacksonville, Florida; Norfolk, Virginia; Pensacola, Florida; and San Diego, California.

Information from the recruiting officer at the Carmel Post Office points out that these schools are open to recruits who have the aptitude and qualify for this schooling on the completion of their recruit training period and before their assignment to sea duty.

In addition to the technical job training outlined above, A. Fam, local recruiting officer, stated that there are nearly fifty trade jobs and vocations for which patriotic young men can receive training when they join Uncle Sam's new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

Civilian Chief Thanks Those Who Are Aiding

On behalf of the hundreds of volunteers in Civilian Defense I want to express amazement and tremendous appreciation of the co-operation given by residents of the Carmel Area in the partial black-out of Tuesday night. Instructions and information were received so late that only a modest percentage of success was expected, but the cooperation of the residents made the partial black-out so extensive that Col. Mack congratulated me on the results.

These results, however, were due mainly to the splendid work of Air Raid Wardens and other precinct Wardens who did their utmost under very trying conditions. In addition, the Area staff closely followed up the hundreds of reports telephoned in to Area headquarters.

As our organization is perfected, information and instructions will be quickly relayed to householders through their Block Wardens. For anything you wish to know, consult your Block Warden. If you do not know who he is, call your Senior Air Raid Warden. These men with their headquarters' telephones are as follows:

Precinct 1, Carl Daniels, 918; Precinct 2, Malcolm Tarpey, 1800; Precinct 3, Floyd Adams, 481; Precinct 4, Jack Belvail, 1040; Precinct 5, Ivan Kelsey, 1030; Carmel Woods, Arne Halle, 1300; Hatton Fields, Paul Low, 1553; Point and Mission Tract, W. M. Flewelling, 1668; Carmel Highlands, Sidney Fish, 980-MX; Carmel Valley, Bernard Schulte, 16-J-1; Pebble Beach, Ashton Stanley, 130; Country Club C. C. Stewart, Monterey 5171.

Only when circumstances are exceptional call Carmel Area headquarters, 1924-W. Leave the police telephones for police calls.

NEW FIRST AID COURSE WILL START MONDAY

A standard course in First Aid by the Red Cross will start Monday at the Fire House under Mrs. W. H. McCabe who will be the instructor. An advanced course for air wardens and others who have completed the standard course will be started as soon as their are sufficient volunteers.

It is requested that for both these classes, people will put in their applications with Miss King at Red Cross headquarters.

GUARD TAKES FIRST ACTION

Lt. Commander Allen Knight, Carmel-reared and well known employee of the P. G. & E., led his men of the California State Guard, Nautical Corps, into immediate action on Sunday.

The nautical corps was placed on guard over wharves and canneries of Monterey's extensive waterfront until the Coast Guard with the Army assisting, took charge.

Knight was one of the originators of the nautical guard idea and, with Ervine Poklen, also of Carmel, worked out the preliminary organization under Capt. Leslie Bosshardt, who has now left Carmel for naval service in the San Francisco area.

Sven Anderson, also of Carmel, holds an important post under Lt. Comm. Knight.

The local corps was the first naval unit of its kind in the state or, for that matter, the entire country.

URGENT CALL GOES OUT FOR AIR RAID WARDENS

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS DURING FIRST BLACK-OUTS

Robert L. Ford and William Plein collided Monday evening on Torres and Ocean at 8:55 during Carmel's first black-out, with damage to both cars.

C. H. Stearns of San Francisco, a guest at Carmel Inn, was another victim. He parked his car in front of the Inn Saturday night and a driving light was taken from the car during the night.

Grocery stores are thriving—with a very slight flurry in certain staples, chiefly noticeable in orders for flour and sugar... the sugar restrictions during the first world war apparently still lingering on in the memories of some.

Mental Blackout

Two motorists nearly had a collision in downtown Carmel. One was looking the other way, but the other had only this explanation:

"Guess I was having a sort of mental black-out."

Lay Offa Him!

Caesar, the pup, was feeling beligerent. The war feeling was getting him.

So he invaded the territory of Carl Daniel's pointer, over in Precinct 1 defense headquarters. The two tangled a little before Caesar was driven away, growling and ready for more fight.

chamber, brightly lighted inside but screened against letting this effulgence break out at any window.

It was the council's first black-out meeting. P. A. McCreery sat in the chair in the absence of Mayor Keith
B. Evans who with City Attorney
William L. Hudson was attending a defense meeting with the supervisors in Salinas.

In adjoining rooms and in the corridor of the city hall defense work hummed. The busy council chamber seemed by comparison a dull place, indeed, in spite of sal-lies of more than unusual spirit.

Rowntree spoke one word of advice to all people engaged in blackout, every householder, every merchant: "Go outside and see if the effect you have achieved is perfect black-out."

Watson praised "good and growing cooperation among civilians," while pointing out that "the greatest trouble encountered among residents came from the Army people themselves."

Many a Carmel man volunteered his services to the Army, Navy, or Marines.

It seems fairly definitely established, so far as information available substantiates, that the planes heard over the peninsula and across Monterey Bay, over San Jose and San Francisco were actually enemy planes.

So war for the first time since California became a part of the United States nearly a hundred years ago physically came to California; and it came as it had always come in historic times, from the sea named by Balboa "the great Pacific Sea."

Until further arrangements can be made, it was announced that the Carmel Harrison Memorial library will henceforth open an hour earlier, at 10 o'clock each morning and will close at the appointed hour of the blackout each evening.

FAR OR NEAR, THE WAR CASTS A LONG SHADOW OVER THESE

The E. Frederick Smith's son, E. Frederick Smith, Jr., who is a radio man on the flagship U. S. California, is somewhere in the midst of the Pacific fray. The Smith's expect to lose their youngest son to the navy any minute now.

Carl Church, who used to operate the store at Robles del Rio, is on Wake Island, tiny air outpost in the Pacific between Midway and Guam.

Irwin Foster, former Carmel fire driver, can smile broadly on his rounds about the village. He's on vacation from Wake—and is Mrs. Foster pleased she has him home at this time! Foster was the subject of a Cymbal interview two weeks ago.

Wednesday noon the Howard E. Smiths received a cable from their daughter Jacqueline which said that she and her new husband Lt. Lee Cagwin, were safe and untouched by the bombing of Hawaii last Sunday.

No word has yet been received from Mr. and Mrs. James Cockburn, former owners of the Pine Cone, who are reported to be on their way to visit their daughter Mrs. Evelyn Mant, resident of the island of Maui.

Barbara Norberg's brother, Dr. Thomas A. Collins, who is on Midway, sent her a cable received here Tuesday night saying that he was well and that Midway was still in American hands.

Mrs. Nora Truslow of Carmel has a son Herbert Truslow who is in the army at Schofield Barracks. Her daughter Patricia Truslow is a nurse at the same place.

Miss Millicent Greenwell, Mrs. Truslow's niece has a mother, Mrs. Maude Greenwell, and a sister Mrs. Fred Richards and a brother Jack Greenwell, all on the island of Oahu in the Hawaiian group.

Albert Burr, brother of John Burr of Carmel, is at Dutch Harbor, Alaska in the Army Intelligence Service.

John Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hendrick Burgess of Carmel is on the island of Mindanao on the Malay Archipelago in the Philippines with a shipping firm. This island is swarming with Japanese laborers and has only a handful of white men. The Burgess' also have a daughter who is the wife of the Swedish Consul in the Philippines.

Corporal W. A. Smith, armorer, U.S.M.C. and youngest son of C. M. (Pop) Smith is now stationed at Cavite, P.I. which has been bombed rather severely.

Bill enlisted in 1936 and spent two years in Guam then was later stationed at Mare Island. Early this year he graduated from the Armorer's school in Philadelphia and was assigned as armorer to the Marine Corps at the naval station of Cavite.

A letter received here Monday from Al Lockwood said that the receiving ship which he is stationed on was at that time anchored four miles from Pearl Harbor.

Paul Prince of the Carmel Development company received a reassuring cable Tuesday night from his daughter, Mrs. John W. Murphy, Jr., sent from Hawaii with the news that she and her two little girls were safe. She had had no news of her husband Lt. Commander Murphy.

Bill Short, second son of Douglas and Marie Short, and an aviator, is somewhere aboard ship in the Pacific, having sailed recently from San Francisco.

Capt. Stanton Babcock, husband of Yadviga Noskowiak who used to play in Shakespeare at the Forest Theater and is once again a Carmel resident with two handsome children, has been attached to the U. S. Consulate at Tokyo.

Luis Turango, Carmel sailor, is presumably missing the "fun" as he is understood to be on assignment in the Atlantic.

"THE WAYFARER" PROVES AN INTERESTING TOPIC TO WOMAN'S CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club brought out a large number of members and guests to hear the speaker, Dr. James E. Crowther present a review of the nationally-known religious drama, "The Wayfarer," which he wrote a number of years ago.

With a cast of 5000, "The Wayfarer," was once given in Seattle and at the cost of $50,000 the pageant was also presented in Madison Square Garden in 1919.

After hearing Dr. Crowther's description of the play, it was unanimously hoped by those who were present that someday "The Wayfarer" might be produced for the Carmel public.

SOCIOLOGIST GIVES FIGURES ON RISE IN FOOD PRICES

At the regular meeting of the P. T. A. at the Sunset School library Tuesday afternoon, the speaker, B. L. Burroughs, head of the sociological department at Salinas Junior College, gave the following percentage advance in food prices during the past fiscal year: retail food prices 2 per cent; wholesale food price, 20 per cent; raw materials, 30 per cent; and an advance in wages of only 1.02 per cent. These figures are backed by those compiled by the government.

Burroughs considers that the price base is set by the purchasing power of the lower bracket income groups.

Take a tip from the Old-Timers

TRAVELING around town here, you'll find Buicks that are still in service after six, eight, ten or even more years.

It's worth noting that these sturdy old Buicks are still serving faithfully and well, for several reasons.

They have the same basic type of engine as the sleek 1942 Buick—a rugged, long-lived, extra-efficient valve-in-head, though it is now made better by FIREBALL combustion.

They have the same dependable drive—a stout torque tube encasing a sturdy steel shaft stretching its unbroken length from transmission to rear axle.

Frames are fundamentally the same now as then; brakes, though hydraulic now, use the same, efficient, self-energizing action.

All the factors that make for strength and long life are still present—plus such further advances as all-coil springs, Domite pistons that squeeze more good from gasoline, Compound Carburetion that spells peak economy with unmatched reserve power.

There's more comfort, more convenience, more beauty, more value in these '42 models.

But what counts is that they're still Buicks—tough, rugged and dependable.

Take a look at what your next car is likely to be up against and ask yourself if that isn't the kind of car it's smart to buy right now.

Available at slight extra cost on Buick SPECIAL models, standard on all other Series.

ON THE BIAS

Satin smoothness is pretty nice to cut into and work on—providing you don't have scratchy fingers from planting ranunculas and anemone bulbs in your Carmel winter garden. And there is something especially rich and elegant about black satin. So if you are one of the gift making kind, stitch up a few black satin pillow cases for friends given to cross country travelling or for those deciding to evacuate. Put on some big splashy initials—for everything is initialed now in flowing scrolls.

Wool gabardine dresses in dynastic colors—Ming blue, Chinese red, Shanghai yellow—are perfect for Carmel chilly days. Warm—and we are needing warm outfits—but of bright insistent color. And they are cheerful for the blackout evenings ordered.

Shawls we should scarcely seek out as such. But shawl-shaped scarves or huge throw robes are another thing. Called "chaise longue robes" they are better than good in many roles—if you don't happen to have a chaise longue. Enormously plaid in big roamy patterns they are made of Shetland wool—two toned violet, or brown, ruddy orange, and yellow. Maybe you would rather not have the shaggy woolly kind, but like the soft silky cashmeres better—the Gordon plaids. They all come from the British Isles. And keep cold knees snug and warm riding in drafty back seats or when you camp on front steps for a bit of quick reading in the chill sun. To say nothing of how these robes would fit in next summer at the Forest Theatre.

Big-as-a-tablecloth handkerchiefs with gay posies sprawling over them, may be bulky but they are theatrical accessories to any costume. Ready for real coryza emergency, too. And you can do things with them. For instance, take two black cotton handkerchiefs, rose-spotted—or red figured—and whip them together, as you will, for a blouse. With a long black skirt they look quite eveningish.

Jumpers effects are not limited now to sports or spectator sports. They show up in the strangest combinations. Made of beige silk marquisette, all covered with silver bugle beads,—these jumpers, with a skirt a bit longer than a daytime one, go to town as formals.

pale beige gray, slipped on over the new prints keep you as warm as you want to be. In spite of anti-print prejudice, they are being worn under such coats even for evening. Designed with extraordinary patterns—bananas, beetles, watermelon slices, tic-tac-toe crosses, fig leaves, lamposts. The fruit ones are picked out with sequins and those crowded with tiny dots have these covered with sequins. People who object to prints as being ahead of themselves seasonally, should see the flowered linen dresses being shown.

A black tulle dress which you have worn a lot can be given a new silhouette by wearing a knee length slip under it. Then it's a waltz dress! Or you can quilt a satin skirt of a last years formal to change its look.

Nylon sweaters are being welcomed by those who cannot wear wool. The Nylons are warm and especially fine insulation against cold winds on the sands.

Eavesdropping shoulders are handy. They can be made to conceal detachable long sleeves that slip off like gloves. Thus affording a two way dress.

More About Roses

So much can be said and done about Roses at this time of year that I'd like to continue last week's discussion. This time, however, the topic will be winter pruning and root treatment. Usual treatment is to plant the bushes in one spot and leave them there the rest of their life time, and then wonder why they deteriorate from year to year.

An X-Ray of the root system would reveal that the roots, after one or two year's growth, have ranged a long distance from the main stem of the bush. So much so that it becomes highly desirable to bring the feeding roots back within reasonable reach of the plant. To do this one must dig up the plant during the dormant season (December and January) and prune the roots back to six to ten inches in length, depending on the size and age of the plant. The tops can also be pruned at the same time; the finished bush should look like one newly purchased, all pruned by your Nurseryman for planting.

Before replanting, I strongly urge that you soak all plants for twelve hours in a solution of Permanganate of Potassium. Use at the rate of one ounce of the material to five gallons of water. Be sure to use a wooden container. This chemical has a peculiar retalizing quality that no one seems able to account for. I first learned about it while on a visit to the Guayule rubber plant in Salinas. It was being used there as a root treatment for the tiny rubber plants going into storage for later planting in the field. As a result of the treatment the plants remained in storage over long periods of time without danger of mold, excessive heat or rot developing. And the plants were alive with vigorous rootlets when the cases were opened for planting.

A gardener friend of mine was discarding a number of Rose bushes some years ago. I rescued seven plants, took them home and gave them the treatment outlined above. Six of them came through in remarkable condition—healthy, dark green foliage and an abundance of fine buds. Don't wait until your plants are ready to be consigned to the garbage can; give them all a yearly renewing.

The Week's Recipe

MACARONI EN CASSEROLE

from Mrs. James Greenan.

A small package of elbow macaroni cooked until tender in salted boiling water, then drained. Put in strainer and let cold water pour through it.

Take 2 slices of raw bacon cut up in small pieces, 1 onion cut in small pieces, 1/2 bell pepper and fry them in butter until golden brown. Add these cooked ingredients to 1 can solid pack tomatoes—salted and peppered to taste—to which a pinch or so of sugar has also been added. Using a little flour rubbed to a smooth paste with cold water, this mixture is then thickened. Grate 1/2 pound of tilamook cheese.

In the casserole, start with one layer of the macaroni, cover with a layer of the tomato mixture, then one of the grated cheese, and so on. Having the cheese on top at the end. Bake in a moderate oven about 1/2 hour.

Two Good Frostings

STRAWBERRY FROSTING

from Mrs. John Abernethy

This is especially dainty for angel food cake but may be used on other cakes.

1 cup of fresh strawberries; 1 cup of granulated sugar; white of 1 egg.

Beat these ingredients together very thoroughly. (An electric mixer is the most satisfactory.) The recipe makes a huge amount of strawberry frosting which not only looks pretty, but is delicious as well.

And speaking of frostings, here's a 7-minute one from Maxine Harbo.

2 egg whites; 2 cups of granulated sugar; 5 tablespoons of cold water; 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Mix these ingredients. Put in double boiler. Keep beating with an egg beater for about 7 minutes, or a little over, until thick and creamy enough frost with. A very simple and very good recipe to solve the frosting problem.

BUNDLES FOR BLUE-JACKETS

No, it is not bundles for yellow-jackets, but bundles for our blue-jacketed boys of the Navy in the war zone that the Bundles for Britain organization is now knitting and sewing for. And if you can wield any kind of a needle, you would be a welcome addition to their number.

Also the orders from B. for B. headquarters instructs Mrs. Burleigh Hall Murray to send all cash on hands to the same source. This is, no doubt, the forerunner to the word already received that this fine corps of women workers will soon be working under American general war relief supervision.

Dr. and Mrs. David Anderson have Mrs. Chester Johnson of Detroit, Michigan paying them an indefinite visit at their home on Carmel Point.

Christmas Party

The Musical Art Club entertained members and their guests at a Christmas party at the American Legion Hall Monday evening.

Double Celebration for Matthews

Among the 300 friends who gathered to honor the gala Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Matthews at the home of their son in San Francisco on Tuesday, November 25, were the following from Carmel, Dr. and Mrs. James E. Crowther, Miss Celia Seymour, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Hall Murray.

An added cause for celebration was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Phoebe Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, to Mr. Harold Jerry Champlain of New York city.

Miss Matthews, who received her social science degree from the University of California, is the executive secretary of the State Coordination Council of Social Service.

Animators at Large

Those three animators from Walt Disney's studio in Hollywood came to Carmel Big Game weekend and were entertained at a house party and barbecue by Muriel and John Neikirk. They were Oliver Johnston, Arthur B. Elliott and Frank Thomas and the rest of the party consisted of the Misses Gretchen Neikirk, Jean Hyde, Mary Helen Alexander, Millicent Greenwell and Chancellor Carter.

After the Big Game and dancing at Del Monte on Saturday and a barbecue and horseback riding on the Seventeen Mile Drive on Sunday, duty at Disney's called the three back. They left by plane just in time to start little Bamby on his way Monday morning.

Paul Mecurio returned Thursday night from Bakersfield where he attended the Fire Defense section of the State Defense program.

Ummie and Al Pay Us A Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Al Ball spent a few days in Carmel with Frederic Burt and browsed around the village renewing old acquaintances. Al Ball had a week's vacation from the Douglas Aircraft in the south and he and "Ummie" (Armine Von Tempky Ball) took advantage of the short vacation by driving north to the Redwoods and stopping at the London Ranch before arriving in Carmel. Ummie was glad of the respite before plunging into the final chapter of her latest book, "Thunder in Heaven" which will be off the press in the near future. Saturday afternoon Frederic Burt invited a few friends in to visit them, which included Marthe and Bruce Douglas, Samuel Blythe, Mary Helen Alexander, and Major Albert Garinger.

50-50-50!

Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Sweeney arrived in Carmel this week from Medford, Oregon to spend the winter here. His daughter Edith has been here since October with Henrietta Janseen.

Dr. Sweeney has three "Fifties" to be very proud of: He has been in practice 50 years last March; he was presented a 50-year pin from the Masons; and in March he will celebrate his Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Germaine Leroux Charms Her Audience With Gallic Grace

by Rachel Morton

The French have a "chic" and elegance not to be surpassed by any other people of the world. When Madame Germaine Leroux made her entrance on the Sunset auditorium stage last Saturday night her at-once gracious and enveloping cordiality won over her listeners. The soft, pigeon-blue gown, so artfully draped as she sat at the piano, enhanced a little woman of charm and beauty.

She approached the Pastorale of Scarlatti in whimsical mood, and there was a nice crispness in her deft fingers. The pianists in the audience enjoyed especially the Mozart Sonata in F major, but it was in the Schumann Carnaval that I began to feel the real artist. The work is difficult, but Madame Leroux handled it without effort, and with great variation of mood. The Valse Allemande lingered long with me, with its insistent, oft-repeated first note of the phrase which the pianist played most insinuatingly. Florestan, a tone picture of Schumann himself was interesting in comparison to his other self, Eusebius. The march of the Dauidsbandler against the Philistines depicted the feud of the Schumann exclusive group against their critics.

Schumann's songs have great nobility which the Carnaval lacks. Perhaps this is why the work is so seldom heard. On the other hand, being simply impressions, one should not delve too deeply. The encore, Brahms Intermezzo, lacked the profundity one expects in Brahms, but there was great beauty in the music as Madame Leroux played it.

The French group, after the intermission, provided the artist with music closest to her heart and veins, and she gave us interpretations in the true French manner. If the Ravel Sonatine was taken at a faster tempo than I have heard it, it was none the less brilliant and beautifully played. The audience seemed particularly pleased with Chabrier's Bouree Fantasque which received great applause. But, oh what poetry there was in the Maid with the Flaxen Hair!

The splash and turnings of The Goldfish were expertly set forth with a splendid technique. In The Fireworks she rose to really brilliant achievement. It is wonderful to be shown by an artist, the sputterings—pinwheels—sparkling sprays—and final embers of fireworks in music.

With a powerful reading of the Toccata of Ravel, whose motifs remind us often of those in his opera, L'Enfant et Les Sortilèges, Madame Leroux brought her lovely program to a close. Her encores, which were hungrily received by a delighted audience, were a Prelude by Debussy and the Ecosseise of Chopin.

Burr Concert Still Tuesday Night at Playhouse

Holding fast to the old troupers slogan of on with the show, there will be no black-out of the John Burr concert scheduled for 8:30 Tuesday night at the Playhouse.

Of course the Playhouse may be a bit difficult to find, but however black it may be outside, the only black part of this evening of music by John Burr and Ellen Rosell, will be John's beard. He will even sing For Behold, Darkness Shall Cover the Earth by Handel.

John, a basso-cantante, has won distinction as a vocal teacher in Carmel for the past two years and also by his two appearances in the Bach Festival. This will be his second annual concert.

Tuesday night he will be accompanied by Ellen Rosell, experienced concert pianist. His program will include Ombra Mai Fu and Si Trai Ceppi, Handel; Der Lindenbaum, Der Wegweiser and Der Erlkonig, Schubert; Benediction, Tchaikowsky; Quand La Flamme, Bizet; De Son Coeur, Thomas; Non Piu Andrai, Mozart; and Shepherd See Thy Horses Foaming Mane, Speaks.

As a highlight of the program, John will sing a group of Negro spirituals.

We feel that, in the last analysis, what is in the interest of Carmel is in the interest of the CYMBAL.

Playhouse to Have Capt. Dwight Long Tomorrow Night

Captain Dwight Long, whose Technicolor motion pictures and accompanying talk on the islands of the South Seas fascinated a Carmel Forum audience a few weeks ago, is returning with the sequel to his former program, his new subject being the Bahamas, Bermuda, Panama, Jamaica, the Darien Indian country, Cocos Island, and the Galapagos.

This presentation, under the title "Tropical Adventures" will be given at Carmel Playhouse at 8:15 tomorrow (Friday). There will be a small admission fee.

Capt. Long, whose South Seas adventures in the Idle Hour, a 32-foot ketch, thrilled and amused a packed Sunset auditorium audience has shown his new pictures just as they will be exhibited in Carmel, at a private performance before President Roosevelt; and they will also be shown this winter to the National Geographic Society in Washington.

As a result of these two series of pictures, young Capt. Long is in-packed Sunset auditorium audience, Personalities lecture group which also includes Thomas Mann, Ogden Nash, Channing Pollock, Rupert Hughes, Boake Carter, and Franz Werfel.

"Tropical Adventures" is an all-color film of full evening's length with a musical score and Capt. Long's own vivid personal narration.

No more fitting time could be imagined than right now to hear what this gallant young navigator and explorer has to say about the vital part the islands may yet play in the defense of the United States.

At the Playhouse on the following evening, Saturday, Long will repeat his fascinating film lecture, "Seven Seas on a Shoestring," covering Singapore, Bali, Samoa, Tahiti, and Java. A full house is expected, so arrangements have been made for an advance sale of tickets.

Carmel Theatre

The thrilling story about Britain's flying fighters "A Yank in the R. A. F." will play Sunday through Tuesday at the Carmel Theatre. This outstanding film, with action dominating the will-paced story, stars Tyrone Power as the Yank and Betty Grable is his American dancer sweetheart.

The scene of the Dunkirk evacuation is done with a cast of thousands, performing realistically the year's top battle scene. The dog fights which actually were filmed by the R. A. F. in action, a tense flight in a British bomber flying high over Germany, dive bombers attacking fleeing boats, are some of the highlights of the film.

Friday and Saturday is "Navy Blue and Gold" starring Jimmie Stewart and "Riders of the Purple Sage" with George Montgomery.

Re Bank Charges

Have you noticed the elaborate scale for check charges enclosed in your last bank statement? It seems that now, after many years of education in an endeavor to get Mr. Average Citizen to open a checking account (every check is a receipt, etc.) the banks have now reversed their line of reasoning and say that your checking account has now become a liability instead of an asset and therefore you must pay for this privilege, and so almost everyone who cannot afford to keep over $500 in an interest free checking account (you would be amazed at the few who could) and who pays his normal bills by check, will be drawn into this new sucker list.

Already the public has taken over the burden of the banks (in the prevailing low interest rates the banks receive in this market) by having their savings interest rates halved and even cut again. The larger banks in the cities of course have suffered most because they no longer enjoy the opportunity of putting out loans by the millions at attractive rates.

This they did in the late twenties, to the sorrow of many bankers, but the bankers, not the public, were at fault.

However, the smaller banks were in a little different position. They did not have these tremendous individual loans to make, and therefore, did not have to write off these large losses. In view of this many of the larger banks had a hard time paying dividends—some of them barely managed to keep afloat, but most of the smaller banks went merrily on making more money and paying larger dividends while they reduced interest on savings accounts. These dividends are earned from Mr. Average Depositor and you could bet your bottom dollar they'll continue.

So now it looks as though the average depositor will have to start a savings account of at least one or two thousand dollars in order to make back enough interest to pay the expense of running his checking account. Of course, if the rates on savings are further reduced, you simply increase your savings account proportionately. If you happen to be short, just borrow the difference.

The list of banks mentioned is a very impressive combine—you just can't run out of them. They're 100 per cent for self interest, and the public be damned. SERVICE is all a bank ever had to offer in return for deposits and public confidence. Funny how things reverse themselves. —BARNET J. SEGAL

Carmel Girl at White House

Miss Dorothy Haassis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Haassis of Carmel, and a student in sociology at Antioch College, had the unique honor of speaking at a dinner at the White House last Saturday evening given by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Open Road Foundation. Dorothy described her experiences last summer with the travelling workshop, sociology research tour made by fifteen students of her college and their professor under the sponsorship of the Open Road. The particular problem which Dorothy studied during this time was housing.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coghlin Sr., spent the weekend at La Playa. Mrs. Coghlin is a member of the Musical Association of San Francisco and is also on the Public Relations Committee.

The Navy Department announced today a change in the Naval Reserve enlistment requirements. Enlistments in all classes of Naval Reserve except V-5 & V-7 now authorized for a period of two, three, or four years and minority enlistments. Men now enlisting in the Naval Reserve will be retained on active duty throughout the period of the emergency, but they will be released to inactive duty as soon after the emergency as their services can be spared regardless of the length of time remaining in their enlistment. For further information apply at your nearest Navy Recruiting station.

of 5 minutes. When this blast is sounded everyone will take cover, all lights of every shape and description put out, automobiles will draw up to the curbs, put out their lights and the inhabitants will take cover.

When the "all clear" signal sounds it will be 2 blasts of the fire whistle. A return to the partial black-out conditions can occur and people may circulate freely under these conditions.

Wardens, police officers and all civil authorities will see that the blackouts are strictly enforced. The civilian defense organization will inspect all lights within their precincts and must be obeyed as to the light regulations under penalty of being reported to the police authorities for action.

All movie houses and theatres must have dim lights in the lobbies unless the air raid warning signal blows in which case they must black-out immediately.

Craftsman of the Coast

Subject of this week's "We Think They're Interesting" column is Gladys Morton, resident of the Palo Colorado down the coast, who makes a livelihood by using the woody materials at hand. Her friend, left, is Tam O'Shanter.

WE THINK THEY'RE INTERESTING

To most of Carmel, the coast fire which raged over 5000 acres in four days a short while ago just provided a little temporary excitement and good reading material; to Gladys Morton it meant real tragedy, it meant that with the flames was going her only means of livelihood. A few more yards and her cabin would have gone, too. It was a sad day.

Her cabin and the trees are her existence for Miss Morton not only lives amongst the woods of Palo Colorado, but she lives from them and her little log cabin has been her only home for 10 years ever since she was carried up the canyon as an invalid whom the doctors could promise nothing more than a bedridden future. When coals from the ridge came tumbling down to her back door, she evacuated and came into town to listen to a radio broadcast over KPO by Rod Hendrickson telling of her own fight for health and means of self support in a forest 15 miles from any town. Ironically enough, he wove her story around the Latin quotation "I shall rise again," describing her valiant fight in hopes of giving courage to others who might be faced with similar discouraging circumstances just at the moment his subject sat as an evacuee amongst her possessions, wondering what would be left of the life she had built for herself, wondering if she would have a home to return to.

And strange were the things that Miss Morton had immediately taken from her house and store room. None of the obviously valuable things which usually go first, but such things as boxes of oak balls, pinon cones, clusters of kaffir corn, stalks of rattlesnake grass, poppy pods and bittersweet, bright sleighs and redwood bowls she had carved. Strange objects to the rangers and soldiers who helped her load the trucks, but all very vital ingredients to Gladys Morton's means of making a living, some of the many things she weaves decoratively into holiday wreaths or candle mounds and which are sent east by so many of her buyers.

Her cabin and her materials were saved, but the remaining trees are crisp brown instead of green and the trunks are of charcoal instead of spongy red bark. This means that she must go long distances this year to get the foliage from redwood saplings for the hundreds of green wreaths which she makes every year at this time.

Being a modest, unassuming sort of person, she herself would never tell you her story, but her friends will tell it for her and the story of Gladys Morton is well worth recounting. Born in Nova Scotia, she stayed there for 20 years, eventually coming to San Francisco to become a very busy business woman. For nine years she was an efficient executive until a serious illness suddenly hospitalized her. Her period of convalescence was a long and weary one and the doctors had little hope of anything better than the life of an invalid for her.

Since the only home she owned was a cabin in Palo Colorado with a friend who helped nurse her, she went there to begin an entirely new life for herself. As she regained her strength, she thought of different ways by which she could support herself—she sold honey, made hooked and braided rugs, little bird houses, and near Christmas time she started to make wreaths from the redwood trees.

After the first year she felt that she was well enough to live in her cabin alone with her beautiful collie Tam-O-Shanter. Ever since that time, for 10 years, she has supported herself entirely by nature and the fruits of nature. She has intrigued herself with making something out of nothing—by boring out huge pine cones for handsome candleholders; by making a birdhouse from bark with a twisted twig for a front step, a knothole for a door—to be sold "for a song"; to find, cut, and polish strangely shaped pieces of wood which Carmel people buy to paint the names of their houses on; to painfully carve out by hand richly grained redwood bowls for fruit; to make nature beautiful when it is no longer a direct part of nature as she does in her pine cone wreaths into which go over 20 different kinds of cones, grasses, and herbs—with something fragrant woven in each. So unusual are these a person from the Metropolitan Museum of Art spotted one in a window and later wrote and asked Miss Morton for one to have for display in the Museum. (In Carmel they're shown at the Red Cross office on Dolores.) These wreaths are really unique, beautifully proportioned and designed. She calls herself just a craftsman, but she is also an artist.

Gladys Morton is to be envied. She is one of the few lucky people who have found enough resource within herself to be happy—without need for contact with civilization. Her needs are small and with her work she is able to fulfill them and live comfortably in her cabin of logs a mile and a half up the canyon, dropped on a hillside beside a stream. On the hearth, her cat and her dog. On the fire, her dinner of steaming ham and sweet potatoes. On the floor, fragrant redwood boughs for her wreaths.

A lonely life? Not for her—she's too busy to be lonely, even in the winter when the storms sometimes maroon them for 10 days at a time, she's not lonely. When she feels strong enough to work steadily through the day, she does. When not quite up to par, she reads. (The library system down the coast is perhaps even more up to the moment than one in a city, she says.)

No. Gladys Morton's life is full. She asks little from it; takes a great deal. Instead of bemoaning the illness which so radically changed her life, she revels in her forest existence, certain that she could never again live in a city; content to live for her craft and to concentrate most of the year on the work she sells at Christmas—getting enough to support herself throughout the year.

She is one who is optimistic by who have found enough resources to live. One whom we all might take a lesson from. —E. H.

CARMEL HAS ANOTHER PETTY CRIME WAVE

There have been a lot of doors opened around Carmel lately and they've all been opened by the wrong people.

Petty robberies were reported to the police when the doors of three cars and one home were opened by some still unidentified thieves doing a little pre-Christmas shopping. Carmel's crime wave reads as follows:

The garage of Lt. Jason Harbert of San Antonio and 10th was entered on the night of November 31, and a pair of pigskin gloves and a flashlight were taken from his car.

On the same night Kip Silvey, Scenic and 13th, had a clock taken from the dash board of his car.

Luther Askew and his wife parked their car on Bob Norton's parking lot on Ocean and Junipero at 7 p.m. on November 30 and when they returned at 10:30 someone had gone through the glove compartment. But they were lucky for, as far as known, nothing was missing.

Wednesday morning, December 3, the home of Mrs. L. Minter on Carmelo and Ocean was broken into at 7 o'clock and $10 was stolen.

MILLER STEWART FORCED TO SELL HIS SMOKE SHOP

Miller Stewart will not be back in his little smoke and news shop nook next to the library, for he has sold out to Hugh Campbell.

Miller, according to examining physicians at the Franklin Hospital in San Francisco, arrived just in time and a delay of even two days would have been fatal, so yielding to the advice of his relatives he has sold his place and Ocean avenue is sure to miss his cheerful presence.

Mrs. Frances Lea will take his place in handing out the magazines and smokes.

Miller was back in town for a few days this week straightening out business matters before returning to San Francisco.
